It will be thus seen that in Shanghai, Yokohama, and Singapore, as well as in this Colony, the revival of the Hongkong Mint is advocated. The evils arising would in all probability have terminated fatally, from the present mixed coinage are so widely felt that the proposed establishment of a British Mint either here or in Singapore is universally regarded with favour. So much has been written on the subject, and the necessity for some reform in the currency so frequently and forcibly demonstrated, that it is superfluous now to reiterate any of the numerous arguments used in support of the Mint. We only trust that the question will not be allowed to fall out of sight, but that the local Government will take it up and do all that is possible to obtain the sanction of

Since hostilities first become precipitated in contequence of the Rebellion, the Custom House duties and more and ze-tax (lekin) have been continually on the increase, bringing in annually an addition to the revenue of many millions but although the ontire Empire has long since been restored to a state peace, and although the merchandize taxes and Customs' duties have not been entirely done away with, financial straits are more pressing than they have ever been in past years, for the reason that the provincial governments have failed, on their part. to stop by atringent measures the westful overflow of income in their various forms of expenditure. The astablished revenue of the State is in its essence so adjusted as to provide for the rapular useds, of provincial administration; but, of late years, owing to the severity with which the three provinces of Shansi, Honan, and Shensi have been stricken with drought, the heressities entailed by way of expanditure for famine relief have brought about the highest imaginable degree of financial exigency. Yourservant has been informed that the late Governor of Houan, Li King-ngao, proposed to raise money by means of a European loan, and that the Special High Commissioner Yuan Pagheng (detailed from his post as Vice-President of the Board of Punishments), proposed that money should be borrowed from the mercantile associations trading under Government authority, both agreeing, however, in suggesting the land revenue as the scourity to be offered. Both indeed, were themselves eye-witnesses of the calamitons visitation which has reduced the he called out, "Inkong!" It remains to be observed that the most important of the departments of outlay to which the provincial administrations are liable are three in number, to wit: the army the provision against breach of the Yellow River embank. ments, and the relief of distress in times of famine. Apart from these, there are few items of expenditure which cannot be postponed. As regards the current expenditure of the provincial administrations, it is scarcely necessary to remark that the heaviest outloy is that which is occasioned by the campaign beyond the Wall. The exigency of military affairs is too pressing to admit of the subject being rashly discussed; but, spart from this, the number of forms of outlay which night be deferred for the present is by no means inconsiderable. Your servant cannot pretend to a thorough acquaintance with all the details of expenditure, multifarious as these are, throughout the Empire; but what he feels to be the most pressing subject of anxiety at this moment is the fact that notwithstanding the greatness of the Empire, there should not be a reserve in hand for so much as half a year's expenditure, whilst, in a time of famine: commotious and revolt are so liable to occur; and were a state of warrure once more to arise, it is impossible to say where means could be found to provide for the necessities that:

We only trust that the question will not be allowed to fall out of sight, but that the local Government will take it up and do all that is possible to obtain the sanction of the Imperial Government for the revival of

WE note that Mr. Consul ALABASTER, in his report for 1876 on trade at Amoy, mentions as a fact what does not appear to have been generally known, namely, that considerable quantities of native opium are produced in the neighbourhood of that port. He says that this is done with the cognisance and under the authority of the mandaring, who lovy a tax upon it. The Amoy drug is, however, like the rest of the native opium, so much inferior to the foreign product that it does not seriously affect the sale of the latter. dead. A native paper called the Kinji Hieron states he is living in Hongkong. The following is the paragraph to that effect translated by the Japan Gazette :- A native passenger by the Kokonoye Maru from Nagasaki brings a startling piece of news. He says that a merchant of that port, who was much favoured in former times by Marshal Saigo recently went to Hongkong on business. There, to his great wonder, he met Saigo in good health, and asked him "how it was that, having been killed on Shire Hill last September, he could be living in Hongkong? The Marshal replied, amiling . "After our final defeat I narrowly escaped falling into the hands of the enemy; but I managed to embark on board a small junk off the coast of Kagoshima, and arrived here safely after many adventures. Heaven has not yet abandoned me. I swear that I will call together all mon of the same opinion as myself, and I intend shortly to march right through Asia. I shall be much obliged to you if, on your return home, you will let my people in Hiogo and Satsuma know that I am in good health." Saige then left the merchant, who did not see him again.

field, but the excessive multiplication of outlets for expenditure, Since hostilities first became precipitated in consequence of the Rebellion, the Custom House duties and mere and zo-tax (lekin) have been continually on the nerosee, bringing in annually an addition to the revenue of many millions; but although the entire Empire has long since been restored to a state peace, and although the merchandize taxes and Customs duties have not been entirely done away with financial straits are more pressing than they have ever landers, was dealt with in a similar manner for a been in past years, for the reason that the pro-like offence near the British Hotel. vincial governments have failed, on their part, to stop by stringent measures the wastful overflow of income in their various forms of expenditure. The established revenue of the State is in its essence so adjusted as to provide for the regular needs of provincial administration; but, of late years, owing to the Heverity with which the tures provinces of Shansi, House, and Shensi have been stricken with drought, the necessities entailed by way of expenditure for famine relief have brought shout the bighest imaginable degree of financial exigency. Yourservant has been informed that the late Governor of Honan, L. King ngao, proposed to raise money by means of a European loan, and that the Special High Commissioner Yuan Pacheng (detailed from his post as Vice-President of the Board of Punishments), proposed that money should be borrowed from the mercantile associations trading under Government authority, both agreeing, however, in suggesting the land revenue as the security to be offered. Both indeed, were themselves eye-witnesses of the colamitous visitation which has reduced the land to a desolate condition, and this last desperate expedient was proposed in despair of finding any other resource. Yet, how little were the need for enricht as to the nonsibility of achieving the object in view, if the tisasuries of the capital and the several provincial Governments had but a reserve of three or four veats expenditure in hand! Your Majesties, the Empresses Regent and the Emperor, practice in your Imperial persons the virtue of frugality, and are oppressed, by day and night, with feelings of anxious solicitude; but the high previncial authorities, it may be from failure to appreciate rightly the Sovereign's desire for retrenchment of outlay, show themselves intent upon objects

ment; whilst of impoverishment the cause is not the insufficient extent of the wealth producing snowing not what to do It remains to be observed that the most imortant of the departments of outlay to which the provincial administrations are liable are three number, to with the army, the provision against breach of the Yellow River embank. ments, and the relief of distress in times of femine. Apart from these, there are few items a carpenditure which cannot be postponed. As regards the current expenditure of the provincial dministrations, it is schrooly necessary to remark that the heaviest outley is that which is occusioned by the campaign beyond the Wall. The exigency of military affairs is too pressing to admit of the subject being rashly discussed; but, apart rom this, the number of forms of outlay which night be defarred for the present is by no means negneiderable. Your servant connot pretend to s thorough acquaintance with all the details of out the Empire: but what he feels to be the most pressing subject of anxiety at this moment is the fact that notwithstanding the greatness of the Empire, there should not be a reserve in hand for so much as half a year's expenditure; whilst, in a time of famine, commotions and revolt are so liable to occur; and, were a state of warfare once more to arise, it is impossible to say where means could be found to provide for the necessities that result that millions and tens of millions of the resources of the State are wasted yearly. At the rest pressure of distress owing to flood or drought:

men are consequently driven to care about them

impotently in despair, and to fold their hands,

After anxious reflection, Your servant would entreat that a decree be issued enjoining upon the high authorities of all the provinces the duty of bestirring themselves actively on behalf of the imperilled public interest, and uniting their efforts towards relief of the difficulties which now baset the State. In all questions of extenditure within their own jurisdictions, or of subsidies allotted on their behalf from other provinces. they should point out, in reports to the Throne, whatever forms of outlay are not of pressing importance, and are open to considerations of postponement. This humble expression of his views accordingly submitted Rescript, referring the above for the consideration of the Board of Revenue; already published

ANAGRAMS. A story is told of an English lady, Mrs. Bleanor Davies, who imagined herself to be a prophetess, and fancied that the spirit of Daniel was in her, because she could transpose her name into "Reveal, O Daniel." Her anagram was faulty, however, lacking an sand containing an I too much. Her surprise and consternation was great when one day she saw an anagram of the same "Dame Eleanor Davies," which read, "Never so mad 'a ladie." Here are a few examples of anagrams form an answer, as it were, to the original word: "Astronomers, moon staters; telegraphs, great helps; gallantries, all great sly ware; inisanthrope, spare him not; old England, golden land: Presbyterian, best in prayer; punishment, nine thumps; penitentiary, nay, I repent."

There are various ways of preparing for the New Year. This is the Dundee one. In the Advertiser of the 28th uit. we read:-"Preparations the New Year. -At a meeting of the police committee, beld on Monday night, the superintendant of police made application for five wheelbarrows (one for each police station) for the purpose of convoying drunk and incapable persons to the several offices. He also submitted a lustré, whereby it appears that it was no less plan of the wheelbarrow in use by the Glasgow police for the same purpose. The committee granted the application. The barrows, which are to be constructed immediately, will each cost £5 15s." With cushions, no angle of forty-five degrees, though even so, makes us wondrous kind .- Punch.

Eight years later, the captain of a small French vessel claimed to have seen off the coast of Teneriffe another them reaches even the town councils, and is of these creatures, more than 15 feet long, large enough to include "fou" as well as without counting its huge arms. This last was swimming or floating at the time on the top of the water and a chase ensued, but without any further success than that of tearing off and securing some morsels of the fins and skin. This year, however, during the tremendous storm of September, it seems that a complete specimen of a similar prodigy was cast ashore in Newfoundland, description of it is given by the Journal It than nine feet long and six feet in circumference, and had the arms or feelers covered with some 2,000 suckers of an inch each in diameter, two of the arms being as much as 28 feet long. When the brute was first doubt, and a sloping bed, at a comfortable found it was still alive, and was glaring savagely with eyes which were literally, like the price seems high. Still this sweet soli- those of the fabulous dogs, as big as saucors, citude is very beautiful. A fellow-feeling measuring five or six inches across. It was at this time of a dark red colour; but in a very few minutes after being left high and dry it died, and the colour both of its body and of its limbs at once faded away to a dull white. Only one thing is wanting to the account in the Journal Illustre, and that is a statement what became of the fish when captured, and where so valuable a curiosity is now to be seen on view. -Globe.

CONCEALING A ROMANTIO MARRIAGE.

Mrs. Flora Stowart was the widow of the brave Colonel Stewart in the war of the rebellion, and her father, William Sullivan is one of the oldest, wealthiest, and most highlyestcemed citizens of Indianapolis. She is possessed of a masculine mind in its grasp of with an incredulous sneer, "he cudna; an' I'm literature and science, and rare musical abisure be wadna do a body sic a good turn, I lity. In the cultivation of the latter gift she made two trips to Europe. While at Munich she met a young and attractive professor of music, William Erail Wulschner, high in the kelpie was a well-disposed sprite, and that favour with the King of Bavaria. He was of being, unlike most carnivora, strictly faith- when kindly treated he was not indisposed leader of the King's band, in fact, besides mentioned the well known case of the miller was attracted by her professional charms and accomplishments, and a mutual attachment is a calumny. At the breeding season each drawing stones. The kelpie allowed himself marriage, she wrote to her parents explaining honoss is usually followed by a number of to be harnessed and did more work in one her hopes and wishes. They were indignant, lions, who try all means in their power to day than two pairs of horses. But the miller and replied that if she married in that way they would disown her. She married, notwithstanding, but had the prudence to keep her marriage a secret. In leaving Bavaria, Prof. Wulsehner's mode of livelihood was cut off, and he came to America ignorant of the language and new to the routine of business. Two years meanwhile had rolled by since, on the 16th of September, 1875, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Flora Stewart, at Munich, Bavaria, the Rev. L. Bushracker, pendent. On the 18th of last month she ancomers.
